

Global workspace theory: Consciousness happens when information is broadcast between different "local processors" in the brain.

