

In the correct version of utilitarianism, how should you make choices that change the number of agents?

