

Integrated information theory: The amount of consciousness a system has is proportional to some information-theoretic measure of that system.

